

Profile Dominique Leroy

Dominique Leroy is currently CEO at Proximus Group (formerly Belgacom), a position she has successfully fulfilled since 2014. Dominique joined Belgacom in 2011 and was from 2012 onwards a member of the management committee with responsibility for the consumer business. Prior to joining Proximus, she worked for 24 years at Unilever, ultimately as Managing Director of Unilever BeLux and member of the Unilever Benelux management committee.

Alongside her executive role at Proximus, Dominique is also member of the Supervisory Board at Ahold Delhaize Group, non-executive director at Compagnie de Saint Gobain and Chairwoman of the Solvay School of Management and Economics International Advisory Council. She is also member of Women on Board in Belgium and of the International Business Council of the World Economic Forum.

Dominique is a customer-focused and engaging leader with a wealth of experience in both telecommunications and fast moving consumer goods. She has a strong track record in transforming organizations to position them for future success. At Proximus she was renowned for transforming the company from a connectivity player to a digital services provider.

Dominique has a Master degree in Business Engineering from the Solvay Business School and is fluent in Dutch, French and English. She was born in Belgium in 1964, is married, has two children and is a fan of outdoor endurance sports, travelling, modern art and music.
